

APPLY FOR A SUMMER RESEARCH GRANT

The Feinstein International Center annual summer grants program is designed to stimulate applied research in issues pertaining to complex emergencies, humanitarian assistance, refugees and other migrants, natural disasters, and food security. The grants are intended to support travel and living expenses. Funds cannot be used to cover salary, overhead, indirect costs, or the purchase of equipment. Grants are up to $3,000 for overseas positions and up to $2,000 for US-based positions.

The program is open to all students at Tufts University who have either a summer internship with an organization focused on humanitarian action, or an agreement to be hosted with such an organization while carrying out the research project. In either case, a confirming email from the organization should accompany the application.

How to apply:

Applications are due by Monday, March 9, 2020

Submit:

- Application form here, (then click on Feinstein Summer Grants Program, and scroll to the link to the application)
- Two to three page proposal that describes the research you will undertake
- Resume
- Contact information for two Tufts faculty members who know you well and agree to serve as references
- Email from host organization
- A list of all research methods courses you have taken and any training on research with human subjects you have completed. Please include dates of courses and trainings
- Email all materials to ann.obrien@tufts.edu

Upon completion of the project, grant recipients are expected to:

- Make a short presentation to Feinstein staff and faculty
- Submit a three page report on their research capturing objectives, methodology, findings, analysis, conclusions and recommendations

Please contact Ann O'Brien with questions at ann.obrien@tufts.edu

